

Cross Roads Escape Games
TEAM BUILDING INFORMATION SHEET

Want to be the coolest boss AND want your employees to learn to work better as a team?

In an escape game, players must work together, communicate, and think outside the box in order to overcome the obstacles while having fun and working under pressure. Along with this fun real life adventure game, we are one of the only escape games to offer an exclusive private space after the game for players to talk about their experience or to have one of our staff evaluate and speak to the group afterwards.

What games do you have?

The Hex Room is our horror themed game for 5-10 players. The group will be divided into different rooms where they have individual tasks they must complete. Although the group is physically divided, there are obstacles along the way that must be overcome as a team.

The Fun House is our less stressful wacky circus game for 4-8 players and is great for beginners. This game will have all the players together the entire time, sharing and working together to escape.

How many people can you accommodate?

Our game maximums are very strict. The phrase "too many cooks in the kitchen" is a perfect example. When there are too many players in a game, communication starts to break down, people get confused, left out, and frustrated. In order for your team to have the experience it deserves, we have a maximum number of participants allowed inside a game at once. If you have a larger group, we are able to accommodate groups up to 18 at once split into two games (10 in Hex Room and 8 in Fun House). We can still accommodate groups larger than 18, but they would have to be spread out into different time slots. More information on accommodating a large group can be provided upon request.
